

JASMS Objectives and Values for all Children

The Joy of Work

We want children to study with enthusiasm and enjoyment. Attitudes toward study and work are built early in life not through what we tell a child to do, through what s/he discovers as a satisfying way of work.

Teamwork

We want children to discover the beauty of cooperative endeavor or teamwork.

Courage and Confidence

We want children to be confident to explore, experiment, test and prove; to value the thinking-questioning process to attain a sense of achievement.

Security and Support

We want children to feel comfortable about themselves, to value themselves, each worthy of respect, love and care.

Respect and Consideration

We believe in the uniqueness of human personality and treasure individual differences as an enriching element in social life.

Better Health and Heightened Vigor

We want children to enjoy sports because we hope to build physical stamina and drive. This means space to run and climb, and leap and play games.

Continuing the JASMS Tradition

From nursery to Junior High School, PWC's basic education is inspired by a non-traditional and progressive educational philosophy. Students develop their full potentials adapting the 7 Pillars of JASMS pedagogy.

The PWC Basic Education believes in the education philosophy of Doreen Barber-Gamboa, the founder of JASMS education. Her educational philosophy empowers children to explore their environment and to learn from one another. It is learning by doing to cultivate simultaneously a spirit of independence and a capacity for cooperation.

The pedagogy aims to equip your children by developing their attitude, behavior and relationships as they grow into personhood. The school also enriches the kinds of motivation and depth of wisdom they acquire as they grow into maturity. It is this balanced and strong values formation that will mold children into becoming well-rounded persons prepared for life's challenges.

7 Pillars of JASMS Education

1. Learning by doing.
2. Living through active participation
3. Leadership through early career formation
4. Self confidence for responsible adulthood
5. Discovering self-initiative
6. Citizenship thru self-reliance
7. Creativity for self determination
